Conditions of Rehoming Animals

- The animal must be in good health and must be seen by one of our keepers prior to the donation taking place, in some situations we may ask for a health check from our vets at your expense.
- Some species will need to be screened for disease to ensure we do not endanger the health of our animals already here at the Zoo. The cost of these tests along with the treatment such as wormer will be incurred by the current owner before the animal is donated.
- For legal reasons, some animals will require CITES paperwork; if they do not have the correct paperwork we cannot accept the donation.
- By re-homing your animal with us you agree to give full ownership of the animal to Kirkley Hall Zoological Gardens and in effect no longer have any ownership rights over the donated animal.
- Whilst we respect you will miss your donated animal we cannot grant free access to the zoo for you to come and look at your donated animal as and when you wish.
- As you will appreciate we have over 530 animals in our care and have little time to give regular updates on how individual animals are doing.
- The animal whilst in our care may be used for public encounters and educational purposes including student handling and husbandry tasks. Animals commonly handled and used for practical's will often be rehomed elsewhere after a year or two for their retirement.
- We do run the zoo as a business and as such we work closely with other zoos and colleges in the UK. If other animal collections are looking for a particular animal and it so happens to be a donated animal we may transfer it to them.
